

China, Russia Pledge Aid to Middle East

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MOSCOW (AP) — Condemning the Eisenhower doctrine, the Soviet Union and Communist China have proclaimed their continued readiness to give Middle Eastern countries "any necessary support" to avert aggression and interference in their affairs.

A 2,000-word communique issued last night by Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai and Soviet Premier Bulganin said:

"The governments of the Soviet Union and the Chinese People's Republic resolutely condemn this policy of the United States.

"They are prepared to continue to give any necessary support to the peoples of the Near and Middle East in order to avert aggression and interference in the affairs of the countries of that region."

The two Communist nations previously have denounced the plan put forward by President Eisenhower two weeks ago for military and economic aid to the Middle East.

The new denunciation was included in the joint communique ending Chou's visit in Moscow last night for Tashkent, en route to Kabul, Afghanistan, to resume his goodwill tour of South-east Asia.

The Soviet Union and Communist China also declared their satisfaction that the nations of the Communist bloc "are developing and strengthening their mutual relations." But the communique warned:

"Any provocative actions of the imperialist aggressive forces, directed to undermine the Socialist (Communist) countries, will be met with the most decisive rebuttal."

The two big Communist powers blamed the Hungarian uprising on "imperialist aggressive circles" and declared that the crushing of the revolt "is a great victory of the cause of peace and socialism."

"Of late the imperialist aggressive groupings have been intensifying the cold war, and are carrying out conspiratorial activities aimed against the U.S.S.R., communism and the cause of peace," they said.

"Even if in the past, there have been some mistakes and shortcomings in their (the Communist bloc's) mutual relations, these are being a present overcome and liquidated."

Humphrey Says Budget Is Too Big

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secretary of the Treasury, in complaining that President Eisenhower's budget is too big, doesn't talk like a man quarreling with the boss. He talks like a man whose boss agrees with him.

George M. Humphrey startled 90 reporters at a news conference, held in connection with yesterday's record peacetime budget proposals, by announcing that rising government spending "should promptly be stopped."

"I think there are a lot of places in this budget that can be cut," said the secretary.

"Name three," said a reporter, and Humphrey demurred.

"I don't believe it is up to me to start now to point the finger at people to make cuts, but I think a lot of people will make some cuts. I think we will do so in the Treasury."

"But he added soberly that if 'terrible' spending and taxing are not halted 'I will predict that you will have a depression that will cur your hair.' The government is taking out of the economy too much money that is needed to produce jobs," he said.

Told that he sounded like an official who had been overruled in trying to economize, he denied it. "The budget, though $72,000,000,000, is the first one Eisenhower sent up three years ago, is the best that could be written at this moment," he said.

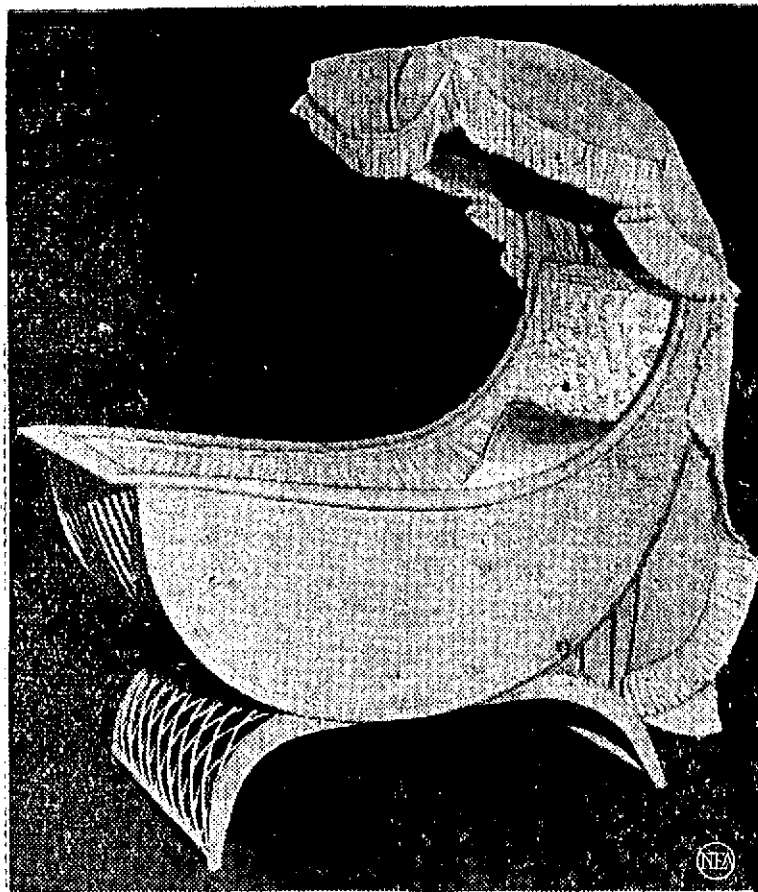

"There is no division or difficulty in the administration at all," he said.

It's unusual for a member of the "Eisenhower team" to criticize publicly the handiwork of the administration. But Humphrey is unusual in several respects.

PREFERS JAIL

PATERSON, N. J. (UP) — William Ellis 38, a laborer, told a domestic relations judge yesterday he would rather stay in jail than face the cold winter days on a suspended sentence for desertion and non-support.

Judge Milton Schamach revoked part of the sentence and ordered Ellis imprisoned for 90 days.

Life Simple in Palace, They Say

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

MONTE CARLO (AP) — While Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco are waiting to become royal parents, they are also working hard at being plain Mr. and Mrs.

Friends say that though their home is the 120-room palace atop the rocky cliffs of Monaco, the Grimaldis' life is much more simple than one would expect for a Hollywood movie star and the reigning Prince of an 800-year-old dynasty.

The Prince and princess live in a well-furnished, comfortable six-room apartment in the palace. It has a big open fireplace and picture windows overlooking the Mediterranean. They do most of their private entertaining there, and the Prince himself mixes the drinks behind a small bar.

The apartment is near the royal nursery—which Prince Rainier has never seen since it was remodeled—where their baby's birth is expected to take place any time after Jan. 20.

Friends say that the 33-year-old Prince and his blonde wife are extremely close. They discuss almost everything together including the wardrobe which gained her a listing among last year's 10 best dressed women.

Despite the informality of their private life, they dress for dinner. They feel that enhances their appreciation of a good meal, and both like good food and wine.

Both are shy people and the princess has not made many new friends outside her husband's family. Her pregnancy has restricted her activity much of the time. Now that her French is becoming fluent, her circle of friends and acquaintances is widening.

The Prince has warmed considerably. His latest public appearances have been casual and a trifle happy-go-lucky. During the American presidential campaign he ever wore an lion button under his coat lapel to lease an American friend who supported Stevenson.

Sheriff Jailed in Dimes Contest

EL DORADO (AP) — One sheriff walking for the March of Dimes at 10 cents a step found himself in jail today and his competitors were headed for jail.

Union County Sheriff O. E. Bishop of El Dorado and Ouachita County Sheriff Grover Linebarrier of Camden each started for the other's town yesterday to walk the 28.7-mile distance at one step for each 10-cent contribution to the March of Dimes.

Linebarrier was arrested for "congesting traffic" when he entered Union County this morning. He was jailed here and authorities said he would be held until $500 bond for the March of Dimes was posted for him.

At Camden, Irate officials warned that when Bishop stepped into Ouachita County he would be arrested for permitting false arrest of Linebarrier. Linebarrier outwalked Bishop 18 to 13 miles at a rate of $170 per mile yesterday. Officials at both ends contended that all was in fun.

Americans Pour Into Washington for Inauguration

By RELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mighty throng of Americans poured into the capital today to join in celebrating the second inauguration of President Eisenhower.

An estimated 750,000 persons were expected to witness or take part in the many events planned for the next four days. But the over-all attendance wasn't expected to be as big as in 1953 when Eisenhower first entered the White House.

High point of the long inaugural weekend will be the public oath-taking by Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon in front of the Capitol building on Monday. Then will come the traditional inaugural parade from the capital to the White House, and four glittering inaugural balls that night.

The Weather Bureau said yesterday it expects colder than normal weather Monday, with a chance of rain or snow late in the day.

But the President and vice president will be sheltered from the cold in the first of two inaugural ceremonies.

They will take the oath of office tomorrow in the White House in the presence of 50 members of their families.

Chief Justice Earl Warren will administer the oath to the President. The White House has not yet announced who will swear in Nixon.

The Sunday ceremony is necessary because the Constitution says a president's term shall begin on Jan. 20.

The White House is standing fast on its refusal to allow any news coverage of the private ceremony. Press secretary James C. Hagerty has said he will attend and brief newsmen later.

Then, on Monday at noon EST, Eisenhower and Nixon will repeat the oath-taking before thousands packed into the Capitol walls and millions watching on television. TV and radio also will bring other events, including the parade, into the homes of citizens across the country.

Architects Blamed in Church Fires

BOSTON (AP) — Churches worth millions have gone up in flames in different parts of the country this winter and responsibility for much of the destruction rests on architects who ignore church fire problems, a National Fire Protection Association spokesman says.

A 10-year survey by the NFPA indicates that this year will bring damage or destruction to 2,000 to 3,000 churches in the United States and Canada.

Horatio Bond, chief engineer of the NFPA, says such "destruction of churches will continue as long as architects continue to ignore the fire problem in the design of churches."

Among fire-spreading hazards, he listed blind spaces in open partitions between the outside walls and interior decorative walls, and between roof and ceiling.

Four Children Perish in a House Fire

WAREHAM, Mass. (AP) — A grieving mother related today how four of her five children perished shortly before midnight last night in a fire that destroyed their five-room home.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Smith, 36, and her daughter Beulah, 14, escaped from the house seconds before it was engulfed by flames.

Dead are: Annette, 6 months old; Chester, 3; Phyllis, 10, and Kenneth, 13.

The father, Jack Smith, 50, was admitted to Taunton State Hospital three weeks ago after a breakdown. He was told of his loss later.

Mrs. Smith said she was awakened by the smell of smoke coming from the kitchen. She found the clothes she had washed and hung over the kitchen oil range were ablaze.

She said she got a pan of water from the sink and threw it on the fire, but the blaze had made too much headway and it spread rapidly.

The mother said she called to Kenneth and Phyllis, asleep upstairs, and then ran into her own room where Beulah and Annette were asleep.

After arousing Beulah, the mother picked up the baby and ran for the door. Just before reaching safety the baby slipped from her grasp and fell to the floor, where she died in the flames.

Mrs. Smith said she heard Kenneth answering her call from upstairs, saying he couldn't get all the way down the stairs because of the fire.

He and his sister Phyllis were found dead near a window, only inches from escape.

The fourth child, Chester, 3, was found dead in his bed on the first floor.

Damage Suit Is Settled for $70,000

MEMPHIS (AP) — An Alabama family's $800,000 damage suit against a Memphis cotton man was settled yesterday for $70,000.

The suit, the result of a traffic crash, was filed against L. T. Barringer Cotton Co., by Thelon Say of Bonz, Ala., his 4-year-old son James and his 15-year-old daughter Fay.

All three were injured and Mrs. Say was killed when their auto and a car driven by Lewis Barringer Jr., 19, collided near Collierville, Tenn., July 22. Young Barringer is the son of the cotton firm owner.

Middle East Plan Worries the Kremlin

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign diplomats in Moscow say the Kremlin genuinely fears President Eisenhower's Middle East program and is trying desperately to find an effective counterattack.

The diplomats have talked with Foreign Minister Dmitri Shpilov and other Russian leaders. They say the Soviet reaction sums up to this:

1. The Russians see the Eisenhower doctrine as another step toward Western encirclement of the Soviet Union.

2. Their opposition is not just anti-West propaganda.

3. The Kremlin knows it has to come up with something concrete, not just propaganda, to defeat the new U. S. move.

The foreign diplomats point out, however, that the satellites are draining the Russian economy so heavily the Soviet Union can't hope to match U. S. dollars.

Several diplomats in Moscow, including some friendly to the West, also say emphasis on the military side of the Eisenhower program, on the heels of the British-French invasion of Egypt, was a mistake.

"If the military aspects had been dropped or minimized, the program would have been hard to beat," one commented.

One diplomat after discussing the Eisenhower proposals with Soviet leaders said he believes the plan "still has the Soviet bosses off balance. They fear it and are seeking effective means of combating it."

Another diplomat told a reporter: "They know public attacks on the plan are not enough and that they must themselves offer some positive program if they hope to continue holding the spotlight with the Arab nations." The Kremlin is desperately seeking something more effective than a mere propaganda fight, the diplomats said.

CHECK SIX-SHOOTERS

WASHINGTON (UP) — A true son of the old West never parts with his shoulder arms, unless he wants to walk into the gallery of the U. S. Senate.

Some officers from the Clark county, Nev., sheriff's office were admitted to the gallery yesterday, along with their big Stetsons and long badgers. But the doorkeeper made them check their six-shooters.

Jonesboro Mayor Hurt in Accident

JONESBORO (AP) Mayor Herbert Sanderson suffered a fractured pelvis and three broken ribs when his car struck a utility pole and overturned near here last night.

State Trooper Bill Miller said Sanderson, traveling alone, failed to negotiate a curve on U. S. Highway 93 at the Sedgwick community.

Sanderson was returning to Jonesboro from Walnut Ridge when the accident occurred.

LSU Awaiting Court Order in Race Issue

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana State University officials today awaited a court order permitting Negro students to register without eligibility certificates before checking with attorneys and deciding "what steps to take."

U. S. District Judge Herbert Christenberry issued the order in New Orleans yesterday restraining LSU from denying registration to Arnette Ludey, 23-year-old sociology graduate student and "all others similarly situated."

But a law passed by the Louisiana Legislature in 1956 requires all students to have the certificates upon registration. State law requires that the certificates be signed by high school principal and parish or county school superintendent and must attest to the student's "eligibility or good moral character."

LSU President Troy Middleton said the university's attorney "tells us we must comply with the legislative acts until they are declared unconstitutional."

"When we receive the court order, we'll check with our attorneys and decide what steps to take. We plan to abide by the law," he said.

The girl involved in yesterday's ruling is a graduate of Grambling College, a Negro state-supported college in north Louisiana. She is scheduled to complete work for her master's degree in August.

Middleton said in the term that ends next week "we have about six full-time Negro students and 50 or more part-time students."

The university first admitted Negro graduate students under federal court order in 1950. During summer sessions, nearly 300 Negro students, mostly teachers, have attended LSU.

Feel Salaries of Municipal Judges Low

By ADREN COOPER

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Figures from the Arkansas Municipal League show that the salaries of city judges would be raised as much as $4,200 under a bill which has been introduced in the state Senate.

Some of the proposed salaries would be more than double present amounts, although in a few cases they would remain the same.

A comparison of the present and proposed salaries for 26 cities shows that the largest increase would be at West Memphis. The bill would increase the judge's pay there from $4,800 annually to $9,000. However, other judges would receive larger percentage increases.

Sen. Max Howell of Little Rock, one of six sponsors of the proposal, said that the salaries were requested by the Arkansas Municipal Judges Association. He said he knew the bill would increase salaries of the two Little Rock judges from $5,000 to $7,200 each, but said that he had not studied other figures.

Also sponsoring the bill are Sens. Q. Byrum Hurst of Hot Springs, Ellis Fagan and Artie Gregory of Little Rock, Guy Jones of Conway and Charles F. (Rip) Smith of West Memphis.

Sens. Dan White of Fort Smith and Jack Clark of Texarkana have indicated that they oppose the proposed salary increases for judges in their cities. The bill would raise the Fort Smith judge's salary from $4,800 to $7,200 and the Texarkana judge's salary from $3,600 to $7,200.

Department Store Sales Decline

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve District declined three per cent last week as compared to the corresponding period in 1956.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today that the decline centered in the St. Louis area, which was off seven per cent.

Gains were reported in all other areas. Little Rock was up six per cent, the smaller cities up six per cent and Louisville and Memphis both up two per cent.

For the four-week period ended Jan. 12, sales were seven per cent greater than in the corresponding period one year ago.

Strataforts Complete a Historic Non-Stop Trip

By DEAN GAUTSCHY

MARCH AFB, Calif. (UP) — Three B-52 Stratofortresses, America's intercontinental hydrogen bomb carriers, landed here today to complete a historic 21,325-mile non-stop jet flight around the world.

Flying at better than a 500-mile-per-hour clip, they were in the air 43 hours and 20-plus minutes. Five B-52 originally took off from California. One dropped out at approximately the halfway mark with mechanical trouble, another made it to England and was held there. The other three continued on.

Gen. Curtis Lemay, commander of the Strategic Air Command, announced the flight conducted a simulated nuclear bomb drop at roughly the halfway point, west of the Malay peninsula. "In a demonstration of the SAC's global capabilities to hit any target on the face of the earth," he said.

The huge jet bombers landed at March AFB to set a new glider flight record, slashing by an hour and a half the record time set by an Air Force B-29 Superfortress in 1945.

It was the first non-stop, round-the-world jet flight. The three planes formerly refueled three times in mid-air from Air Force aerial tankers during the more than 24,000-mile, six-day, blazing trip.

Although the refueling points were not immediately announced, it was calculated by unofficial Air Force sources that the planes, which took off Wednesday from Castle AFB near Merced, Calif., north of here, had received their refueling lines somewhere over the Eastern Mediterranean, again over Saudi Arabia, and the last time over the Philippines before heading for California on the return leg.

Some of the refuelings were at night, some in bad weather, according to Air Force spokesman Maj. Jack Steffensen, "but this failed to hamper the tanker operation."

Lemay was waiting for the heroic airmen of his command when they landed. He had a citation ready for them, praising them for the extraordinary skill, professional airmanship, selfless determination and dedication of each participating.

"It (the flight) has opened the skies to unforeseen advancements in the field of aviation."

The three planes took off at 4 p. m. (EST) Jan. 16 assigned "to go around the world," Lemay said. They flew over Newfoundland, thence over North Africa, Arabia, the southern tip of Ceylon, the southern tip of the Malay peninsula, let go with the "simulated nuclear weapon."

An Air Force spokesman, asked whether the mock bomb was intended to be hydrogen or atomic (fusion or fission), said "it could have been any type. I'm not free to say."

The planes continued over the Philippines to Guam and then flew into March Air Force base, covering a total of 21,325 miles.

Refueling was done by the Air Force's K-77 aerial tankers.

B-52s were first delivered to the Strategic Air Command in June, 1945, replacing the propeller-jet B-36 as the backbone of America's heavy bomber force.

They have more than doubled the speed and altitude performance of the B-36s.

Man Reaches 109 Years of Age

DEFUNIAK SPRINGS, Fla. (UP) — "Uncle Bill" Landy got his flowing white beard combed, cleaned and ready for the "kissin' today and at 109, 'tell all the folks I'm getting along fine."

The kissin' will be at the big birthday celebration this afternoon for the youngest of the three surviving veterans of the war between the states. Pretty high school girls, garged in the dresses of Civil War days, will load him down with hundreds of presents and kisses.

"I do love pretty gals," the gnarled old Rebel said.

Although he is still spry—"still got my hearing and my eyesight's tolerable"—the years have mellowed William Allen Landy since he fought morning of 1865 when he fired a muzzle-loading rifle at the "damn Yankees" attacking Elba, Ala.

"It would have been better if the South had won, but I don't hate the Yankees," Landy commented. "If a Yankee trooper came by today, I'd ask him to set a spell."

CLOSE SHAVES

ROSELLE, N. J. (UP) — Barber Rinaldo Romano specializes in close shaves.

Romano, 19, a survivor of the Andrea Doria sinking last August, was inspecting minor damage to his car after a collision yesterday when he was narrowly missed by a fire engine which was racing to a fire in his apartment.

George Ware Is Rotary Club Speaker

George Ware, former director of the University of Arkansas Experiment Station here, was principal speaker at Friday's regular Rotary Club luncheon.

Mr. Ware discussed the agricultural progress made in Brazil through aid of the United States, Ho and Mrs. Ware are in Hope for a short visit after several months in Brazil.

Mr. Ware has been re-assigned and will leave soon for Indonesia. The dense population of Indonesia and conditions there were also discussed by the former Hope man.

Wayne Russell was elected secretary of the club replacing the Rev. Bill Lund resigned. Visitors included Robert Jewell and Bill Washburn of Little Rock and Jimmy Mayo of Atlanta, Ga.

Six Killed in Washington Plant Blast

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UP) — The Pacific Powder plant near Millersylvania State Park about 6 miles south of here blew up at 8:3 a. m. today and the sheriff's office said six persons were killed.

The dead were identified tentatively as Art Stinker, Joe Davis, Bruce Dink, Earl Riggs, George Gruning and Wayne Brown.

Cause of the explosion was unknown immediately.

The sheriff's office said at least four persons were injured. However, an Olympia ambulance company official said "it looks like about a dozen or so injured."

The plant was situated on Tilly road just south of Deep Lake in a sparsely settled area. Olympia and Tenino, Wash., residents who felt the shock thought it was an earthquake.

Gas Service Restored to Everyone

By The Associated Press

Most Arkansas industries began receiving their normal supply of natural gas again today as warm temperatures caused domestic demands for the fuel.

Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., and Mid South Gas Co., each said at Little Rock they expected full service to be restored.

Ark-Mo Power Co., with headquarters at Blytheville, said it planned to continue curtailment as long as temperatures remained below freezing. It said all its industrial customers had standby fuel supplies mostly oil — and that no industries were shut down because of the curtailment.

The curtailments began early this week when temperatures dropped into the teens in some portions of Arkansas.

The increased demand for gas by domestic users — people in their homes — reduced the supply available for industrial customers.

Carney, Gleason to Part Company

NEW YORK (AP) — Art Carney and Jackie Gleason will part company says Carney's manager, after Carney's contract expires in June.

Carney and Audrey Meadows have been Gleason's two chief mainstays in his rise to the top as a television comic in the last five years.

William McCaffrey, Carney's personal manager, yesterday confirmed reports that Carney would leave Gleason's weekly show.

McCaffrey, saying the parting was amicable all around, added: "Gleason has other plans for next year and they don't include Carney. That's to Carney's liking. We think he's ready to fly on his own."

There have been reports that Gleason may abandon his weekly show on CBS next season in favor of occasional spot shows.

TRUTH TEST

ROME (UP) — British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd today took the "truth test" which is based on the old superstition that liars who placed their hand in the mouth of the mask of attrition in Comedien church would have it bitten off.

"A politician must not take risks," he laughed and placed only two fingers in the "mouth of truth." They are still attached.

Policemen Called on for Midwife Duty

CHICAGO (U) Two policemen, one a bachelor, were called on for midwife duty at a North Side apartment today, and were successful in handling the birth of twin girls.

Policeman Edwin Jurczyk, 33, said he and his partner, Alex Koehler, 32, didn't believe they had time to take Clara Burnett, 18, to a hospital, so they told neighbors to leave her apartment and took over. Jurczyk, who is married, attended to the woman and Koehler, a bachelor, called the Chicago maternity center and received instructions which he relayed to Jurczyk. The mother and twins, born prematurely, later were taken to a hospital, and were reported doing well.

Fire Guts Buildings at Mountain Home

MOUNTAIN HOME, (U) Fire, apparently touched off by an explosion, destroyed two buildings at the Midway community about six miles north of this north Arkansas town last night. Damage was estimated at $55,000.

Authorities said they believed the blaze started after an explosion at Carter Motor Co., and spread to the Midway Hotel. Both buildings were destroyed.

Sheriff Jack Gregory, a partner in the motor company, estimated his firm's loss at about $25,000.

Roy Ranuser, owner of the hotel building, said his loss would be around $30,000. Both structures were covered partially by insurance.

The hotel also housed a cafe, a trading post, the American Legion

Bogart Legend Will Continue in Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (U) They are buying Humphrey Bogart today but his legend will live on.

What set him apart from other actors?

He was a fine performer. But there were others of his generation who were equally fine. Many of them never became stars.

Many faded in their middle years. Not Bogart. When he died of cancer at 50, he was still on top of the movie heap.

Why did he last? The answer lies in the character he created both on and off of the screen.

Bogart's whole life had flavor. It was a sharp, pungent, unmistakable flavor of a true individual.

From the start of his Hollywood career, he refused to fit the pattern. While other stars coyly sought after the press, he barked and growled at reporters. But he was viewed with affection by most of the Hollywood press.

The reason: he was copy. "The only way to get publicity is to be an exciting enough personality. Then people will write about you," he once said.

Bogart loved to slap the face of convention. Most stars shun any mention of liquor and remove glasses from the table when they are photographed.

"I defend my American right to take a drink when I feel like it," Bogart said once. "Citing the proverb 'In vino veritas,' he said he drank for his health."

One of his favorite theories was that the world is run by low normal. He would disappear if every brought up.

Bogie had opinions on everything, including politics. An ardent Roosevelt man, he campaigned for Ike vs. Taft before the 1952 convention, then came out for Adlai Stevenson. To add to the confusion, he founded what he called the Progressive Independent Reactionary party with himself and writer friends as presidents.

Bogart fascinated all of us because of his very independence. We live in a conforming world. All around are pressures to be a member of the team, to buy standard brands, to live standard lives. Most of us do so.

Bogart wouldn't conform. That's why he was great.

Jerry to Try First Show Without Dean

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (U) —Let's see now, we have here some coffee-stained notes made while Jerry Lewis was eating breakfast the other morning.

Breakfast in a hotel room is an athletic event for Lewis: orange juice on the back of one chair, toast while wandering around, and heavens knows where he ate the fried eggs.

It's energy, that's what it is. Restless, bouncing energy. Early in the morning to.

Lewis is here for his first performance on television without his erstwhile TV partner Dean Martin. It will be a one-hour color show on NBC-TV Saturday night.

What's he going to do? Well, what isn't he going to do? "I've revised the layout 13 times," he said. "One way I wouldn't sing, one way I wouldn't dance, one way there wouldn't be pathos. I want to run the gamut of entertainment, and you can't do everything in an hour."

"Pathos is the foundation of humor. It's the raw, jumping nerve of comedy. Without it you've got nothing. To do it you have to be an actor. But you have to be an actor anyway before you can be a comedian."

Then, chewing on a piece of toast:

"I don't use guests just to have guests. A show that announces it's having, say, Gary Cooper, and then Cooper comes on and says, 'Yep,' and then disappears, that show is an insult to the intelligence of the American people."

Of course a performer who does a weekly show has to have guests. He's got to have help. Personally I wouldn't want to do one live TV show a week even if I was hungry. I've tried to keep television an event. Back in 1950 when I refused to do 39 shows in a year, my manager wanted to give me a gift certificate to the Meninger Clinic. Now he agrees with me."

DOROTHY DIX

This Act of Kindness Invites a Calamity

Dear Dorothy Dix: A very dear friend of mine became mentally ill several months ago, and for a time I took care of her at home. She finally had to be hospitalized, her children were taken by their grandparents, and I continued on at her home, washing and cooking for her husband.

We go out together occasionally, and spend quite a bit of time with his family. Of course, I've known them for a long time and we have all gotten along very well. He says he loves me, and wants to get married. He claims it will be a simple matter to divorce his wife. I think he still loves her, and regards me chiefly as a convenience. Should I chance it?

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm 17 and, unfortunately, have gotten a bad reputation because I often spend the night with my boy friend. I don't see anything wrong, since I love him so much. My problem is: how can I straighten these gossips out and stop the talk?

Dear Marion: The solution is simple — stop the actions that are creating the talk. You are old enough to know the importance of a good reputation and good character. Don't be fooled! Your boy friend shares the opinion of everyone else and, in due time, will let you know it. Don't wait.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am really baffled. My parents are divorced, remarried, and shared my custody until I became of age. I never liked my stepmother but get along very nicely with my stepfather. I'm getting married and wonder if

These things are not your concern. He has his own family, plus a set of in-laws, who can help. Evidently they're well pleased with any situation that relieves them of this responsibility. I suggest that you duck out before the situation becomes unpleasantly involved.

It would be proper to invite both parents and their families. Should I surprise them, or let them know the others are invited?

Dear Maggie: Are you planning a wedding or a 12-round bout? By all means, let each parent know the other has been asked to attend. Let them use their own discretion from there on. But please, no surprises!

licks old Center-Post Agitator Problem! THE LAUNDROMAT NEW WAY TO WASH

Westinghouse removed the Center-Post entirely . . . put smooth agitators at the inside of the wash basket. As the basket revolves, these agitators wash the clothes by lifting, turning, flushing through sudsy water 50 times a minute. Every piece is washed all the time, thoroughly, equally well.

The old-fashioned Center-Post agitator washes with a jerk-jerk motion. Clothes in the center (harsh action zone) get rough treatment; clothes in the lazy outside zone hardly move.

Westinghouse Laundromat With New Way to Wash

All These Plus Features

- Exclusive Weight-to-Save Door
- Water Saver
- Handy Laundrofile
- Uses only half as much detergent
- Uses 10 gallons less water
- Self-Cleaning

Runnerup in SWC Could Shape Early

By The Associated Press

Southern Methodist, bidding for a third straight Southwest Conference basketball title, opens weekend play tonight in a game against Texas.

The Mustangs will be hoping from here on what their chief rivals will knock each other out of the race.

SMU, ranked third nationally in the AP poll, got a scare Tuesday night, but a pair of free throws by big Jim Krebs enabled them to edge Rice 59-57 in the last minute of play. The loss topped Rice into third place in the conference standings behind the surprising Baylor Bears.

Baylor downed Texas A&M 67-58 to move into second place.
Southern Methodist leads the field with a 5-0 conference record with the chief opposition coming from Baylor and Rice.

Those two teams play Saturday night and a Rice victory coupled with an SMU win tonight would give the Mustangs a two-game lead over Baylor and the Owls.

Baylor has a 3-1 conference record while Rice owns a 3-2 mark.
Texas has a 1-3 record in conference play. Arkansas is 2-2.

The Mustangs invade Austin
amid pleas by University of Texas officials to prevent rowdy behavior
by fans.

University of Texas basketball players yesterday joined in a public appeal to students to prevent a possible recurrence of a spectacular display that marred the Texas-Rice game a week ago.

Fans tossed trash, pennies and a hangman's noose on the floor to express their dissatisfaction with the game.

In the only other game scheduled this weekend, Texas Christian will host Oklahoma City University Saturday night at Fort Worth.

Which meant little to Cass, and this time Marcy did not interpret.
"You're not in uniform."

"It's not required on this duty."
Again she was struck by Jake's self-contained and quiet manner.
Still feeling disturbed — about something — Cass spoke almost sharply. "Civilian clothes make it difficult to remember that you're a Captain."

"Major," said Jake, quietly.
"Oh, really?" said Cass, brightly. "How very nice for you!"

The lights came on. The ceiling fans began to circle and flap;
the freezer and refrigerator whined into service, and the candles stood pale in the over-all illumination.

She must, she said, put out the candles and reset the electric clocks. Jake and Marcy said they would help.

"Can you get over to the apartment?" Marcy asked her.
"I'll stay here on the couch till Alex comes back — but I know Jake's car can't get out until that tree is moved. However, I have an empty room — the big front one, Marcy. You can use that.
Though I'd better check on it when I go upstairs."

In the upper hall, Cass led the couple straight to the door of the big front bedroom; her fingers pressed the light switch. Pink-shaded lamps bloomed, lighting the frilled white curtains, the soft green carpet sprigged with moss roses, a mirrored dresser, and a walnut bed — wide and soft.

Then she smiled at Jake. "I'd lend you a pair of Alex's pajamas," she said, "but I don't think I can get to the apartment."
He said something, his eyes dazed. Then — "I'll be fine." And Cass smiled again, brightly, upon the two young people. She went into the hall, said goodnight, and finally closed the door upon them.

Marcy leaned against the foot-board of the bed, and grinned at Jake. "Extremely matrimonial, isn't it?" she asked, and then, no longer able to contain her mirth,
she collapsed upon the moss roses
rocking with laughter.

It was difficult for Jake to look more startled than he had been looking, and feeling, for the last five minutes. "She thinks..."
he began, in a shocked tone.

Marcy nodded. "I know she does," she gurgled. "She thinks that you're Lee — and that we're..."

"Not!" said Jake loudly.
Marcy got to her knees, then stood up, and came to him. "Oh, no!" she said warmly. "You definitely are not, Jake."

His arms received her, his lips
said, "Oh, Marcy!" he cried.
"I never believed in it before."
he said in a wondering tone.
"Love at first sight, I mean. Did you?"

She didn't answer. Passion rose in such a tide of wonder between them that any miracle could seem possible.

"To think," whispered Jake,
"that this morning you were only a name!" Then, as if his own words had rung a bell in his mind,
he pushed Marcy out of his arms,
he was gone.

"You've got to get out of here!"
he said gruffly.

"Yes," she agreed. "I'll leave.
But first can't we — you had things to talk to me about. It's not late — only a bit after 10. We can get that 'talking' done, and —"

Jake mopped his face. "But Cass..."

"Oh, who cares what she thinks? She can be as wrong as the next one — and won't her face be a sight when she finds out about this?"

But the "extremely matrimonial" peddled by Jake, and when his talking with Marcy was done, his business attended to — she

Alex was wet when he stomped into Sue's house.
His flashlight beam touched Sue where she lay upon the dark green couch.

She took a deep, shaken breath, and another. Her eyes peered at him and just as suddenly as they'd gone out hours ago, the lights came on.

She kept her eyes on his face,
but her hands fumbled about on the couch until they brought up a folded sheet of paper; it held a half-dozen lines.

The note was from Matt—Alex
well knew the angular handwriting.

"I'm leaving. Sue, I've reached the end of the rope. You're too patient, too good. I'm not the man for you, and I'm getting out. I'll contact you through Francy."

That was all. Alex sat down beside the crushed woman; of course she was crushed. He himself — well, he was sorry, of course. And helpless. It was hard to find things to say. . . .

While tragedy was being played in Sue's home, farce's mask had hung upon the front door of the Haven. Upon that fancy, lead-glass front door.

Marcy and Jake talked together, speaking now of Germany,
of people they'd known, of experiences shared. They spoke of places where Marcy had been — Frankfort and Pirmasens. And Jake told of the black frost he'd once seen at Bromerhaven.

"I didn't know you'd been at Bromerhaven," said Cass.
"Oh, I get all over," said Jake.
"You know, I'm with the HICOG office in Frankfort."

"I thought you were an engineer," said Cass, vaguely interested with the way Marcy had intimated with the way Marcy had in-

"Which meant little to Cass, and

When Alex reached the Haven
after leaving Sue, he found Cass sitting before the fire, alone.

"The power's back on," she greeted him.

He shrugged his jacket, but not his boots or cap.

She got up to go to the kitchen,
and he followed her. "I can make you coffee."

"No, just a sandwich and some milk." He ate, standing, with his elbow hooked over the top of the refrigerator. And he told her of Mr. Graham's hand, about the auxiliary. And about Matt.

"Oh, Alex!" moaned Cass.
"It's hit her hard. She's put up with a lot. Now, to have him walk out this way — Cass, would you go to her? She needs a woman to talk to. I did the best I could, but..."

Cass looked wildly down at her skirt, and at her barefoot sandals.

"I can get over to the apartment," Alex offered. "Will hacked some. I'll clear a little better path. Tell me what to bring you."

She told him exactly what she'd needed and where to find the things.

Blue Jay Cove would long remember the storm of that August night. Would talk about it, and compare other storms to it — and hope none ever came to exceed its fierceness, or equal the damage it had done.

In the jargon experts in such matters, a tropical storm had suddenly veered inland, followed the river to the precise thermal spot where a cold front from the north had met those storm clouds, touched off the swirling winds, and dumped moisture like an over-turned tub of water upon that particular bend in the river.

A squall line of storms, of varying intensity — so the experts spoke of that night of terror.
Cass and Marcy had liked to swim rolled and deposed, boiled with the millions on millions of raindrops, turned a milk chocolate brown as the banks washed slippery with mud, and the waters rose between the topped them — concealed them. Concealed the bridge, too, and the railings.

The creek raced down
the channel of the road, a creek
no longer, but a foaming, whitelashed stood at crest, taking everything in its course.

All through that night the water rose; little waves licked at new banks, then new ones came behind them, pushing, heaving, shoving, and at last resolving into a conquering swell of muddy water which carried all before it, fence rails and tall trees, small animals, a battered boat, and the angle of a roof riding down the flood, turning slowly, spinning, rising, crushing, across the fields,
furthering the water across the road, furthering all before it. A child's tricycle, a garden chair, a car.

A little car, an old car, a blue
one. And within it, a woman, it twisted, and turned, and was held finally by the branches of a tree too mighty to be uprooted even by such a mighty flood. The box of it filled with water; on its surface floated a leather bag until it came to the open window; it bumped there for a time, and finally floated out and away on the main current of the muddy, rolling stream.

But held behind the wheel of the car, pinned there, was a woman.

And the Police called Dr.
Ward at House Springs Hospital.
Someone said he was — had been
— the dead woman's physician.
Their voices were dry with horror as they added their tragic news to the load already carried upon that young man's shoulders.

Last night Alex had readily handled the immediate crises of the storm and its developments.
But this morning, faced with the mess which must be cleared away —

He put the phone down, and sat staring. His hand lifted to smooth back the crest of his black hair.
As he did so, he noticed the white coat sleeve which dropped away from the lean bone of his wrist.
He noticed the threads of the starched duck — with one thread a bit coarser than the others. He noticed those things because his mind balked at the barrier of this thing which he would have to face.

"How awful!" Alex whispered.
It was "awful." Because — he knew at once — Lenore dead would be almost as great a problem to him as would have been Lenore alive, able to carry out the thing which she had set out to do on the night of the storm.

For minutes the doctor sat and stared at his telephone. "What shall I do?" he asked himself.
"What shall I do?"

He remembered the sentence or two of the telephone conversation which he'd overheard. Matt — and Lenore — had planned to meet somewhere last night. And the storm — perhaps they had
